AdvertisementLesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender rights in Iraq Lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) rights in Iraq are limited. LGBT people are discriminated against and suffer abuse, and there have been some developments since 2005 that are to be commended. Lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender discrimination LGBT Iraqis are widely discriminated against. Article 4 of the Constitution of Iraq and article 90 of the Penal Code criminalize homosexuality. Under Article 4, homosexuality is defined as any act committed "between men" or "between women" which is deemed "contrary to the normal practice of sexual behavior". Other punishable acts include homosexual acts between consenting adults and pornographic materials involving "unnatural" sex acts. Article 90 adds additional elements to the definition of homosexuality. It criminalizes any act "against nature" committed in public or private, and makes conviction punishable by up to one year in prison. Despite the fact that, in May 2008, a Constitutional Court of Iraq ruled that the criminalization of homosexuality was unconstitutional, since then police have arrested at least 17 men and three women, the most recent of which were arrested on October 11, 2015. Human rights activists have reported that gay people who are in police custody are severely beaten and tortured. Police often deny arresting LGBT people. The Iraq Human Rights Observatory estimates that 10,000 LGBT people live in the country, although this is an underestimate. LGBT activists estimate that the number of LGBT Iraqis in the country is 20,000. In a 2005 Human Rights Watch report on Iraq, it was stated that according to the Iraqi Governing Council there were 80 LGBTs in Baghdad, but that number has decreased significantly in the years following the US-led invasion and occupation of the country. In 2010, the United Nations stated that the application of the Anti-Homosexuality Law is still in practice. In addition, in 2008, The New York Times reported that: "Homosexuality is against the law, and even being suspected of having a homosexual relationship can bring a death sentence. Boys as young as 14 are taken to police stations, and if they are found in possession of pornography, the penalty is hanging. Executions are common. "If people don't 'come out' they can be accused of being homosexual or have children they don't want to admit to, said a policeman in the capital. 'If they don't hide themselves, they won't be able to get a

Cracked AutoCAD With Keygen has a number of plugins: AutoCAD Plug-In Architecture: Represents a software architecture for creating and integrating AutoCAD plug-ins, which allows users to build custom tools for AutoCAD. This architecture is based on the model-view-controller (MVC) architecture. AutoCAD plug-ins are written in C++. The AutoCAD software architecture is often misquoted as being a plug-in architecture. In fact, a plug-in is a type of extension, and the software architecture provides a framework for enabling the creation of extensions for AutoCAD. See the AutoCAD Plug-In Architecture for more information about AutoCAD plug-ins. Each plug-in extension must be registered on the plug-ins site by developers of the plug-in. The plug-in architecture provides a number of ways for developers to register plug-ins, including a registry (portal) accessible through the AutoCAD user interface. Plug-ins interact with AutoCAD through COM objects. The most significant AutoCAD plugins are listed here: * AfterCAD: This plug-in acts as an AutoCAD component; it provides extended capabilities to some specific categories of functionality and data, such as (1) dialog boxes, (2) libraries, (3) access to hidden information, and (4) text manipulation. For example, it provides an interface to X-refs and a clipboard manager. It uses MFC and COM objects. * InterMap: Adds the ability to create and edit map files. * ArcIMS: An ArcIMS (interactive mapping service) application that uses web services to interact with other web services or on-premises data sources. It provides an RMS and the ability to generate and publish map data. * ArcSDE: An ArcSDE application for defining geospatial data in ArcSDE tables. It has the ability to construct a data access model based on tables in ArcSDE and also use data stored in PostGIS. It is also integrated with ArcIMS to provide mapping capabilities. * Autotrace: A tool for creating route profiles in a CAD drawing. * Autowiz: A tool for creating editable annotations. * BDR (Business Data Repository): A set of generic and detailed query tools that provides a set of methods for automating queries over both ca3bfb1094
