AutoCAD 2017, the last major release of the current AutoCAD 2017 product line, was released in March 2017 and is scheduled to be replaced by AutoCAD 2019 in 2020. As such, AutoCAD 2019.1 is basically a maintenance release, although the features of the 2019.1 release do highlight and continue to support some of the best changes made in the past couple of years. The 2019.1 release is not the first time the AutoCAD team has made an update to its flagship product. In 2014, AutoCAD 2014 was released and included some new features that caught on with users. In 2017, AutoCAD 2017 was released. Then in 2018, AutoCAD 2018 was released.
