Abstract: The relation between the butterfly effect and Turing's halting problem is discussed. We will see that one can explain the halting problem via an effect on the real butterfly. This opens the possibility of a generalization of the algorithmic information theory to non algorithmic systems. We will also discuss a concept that may be a foundation for the algorithmic information theory. This concept is the measure of convergence and it is a consequence of the ergodic theorem. Keywords: Turing machine; chaos; algorithmic information theory; halting problem; ergodic theorem; convergence; measure.
