In this world of a thousand years past, there is a technology called Magic that has surpassed the use of Science. At that time, the wisdom and spells of the ancient advanced nations of the world was kept as the sole property of the few, and throughout history humans lived in terror and enslavement in fear of the Mages, and the Mages in fear of their own power. But through the centuries, the Masters of Magic have devolved their arts to the lower echelons of society, creating the the craft of the common person. In a time of war with foreign invaders, those common people must learn the craft of Magic and use their newfound abilities to stand up against the oppressors and reclaim their true future.
