This one is really strange to me but here is what I want to do: I have a table in my DB with two fields, a date and a time value. Let's say this is my tbl_testtable date|time 1/8/2012 1:12:00 PM 3/10/2012 9:06:00 AM 4/8/2012 2:56:00 PM I want to use the date from the table and use it in a calculation. I want to use this IF function if(date>today) then date=yesterday if(datetoday,0,1) - IF(dateDATE(NOW()), 0, 1) DAY) AS yesterday, DATE(CURDATE() - INTERVAL IF(date

Studies on the identification and structure determination of a new species of the species group I (Ia and Ib) of Ruminococcus obeum based on phenotypic and genotypic analyses of the gtfC gene and restriction endonuclease analyses of the 16S ribosomal DNA. The genus Ruminococcus is one of the most common and important anaerobic bacteria in ruminant fermentation of food and feed. A study was initiated with a view to improve the taxonomic classification of this group and identify new species of Ruminococcus. A representative strain was isolated from the feces of healthy cattle and identified as a novel species, Ruminococcus obeum, on the basis of its 16S rDNA sequence and the biochemical characteristics. Polyphasic taxonomic analyses of strain NCIM5102 were performed in the present study to further characterize this novel species. The gtfC gene was cloned from strain NCIM5102 and a 1038 bp open reading frame (ORF) encoding a 345 amino acids protein, designated gtfC (rfbC), was identified. A comparison of the gtfC gene sequence from R. obeum with those from the recognized species of Ruminococcus revealed that the gtfC sequence from R. obeum could also be found in both species of Ruminococcus and Ruminococcus lactaris. On the basis of the phenotypic characteristics and genotypic data, R. obeum is proposed as a new species of the species group I (Ia and Ib). Strain NCIM5102 is the type strain of the species R. obeum. Adam Tangle d0c515b9f4

In their last regular season game before playoffs, the Yankees put on an absolutely amazing pitching display. Masahiro Tanaka went the distance, striking out 14, while J.A. Happ and Lance Lynn, each struggled to retire a single batter. The Yankees' bats put together a four run outburst in the fourth and went on to a 13-2 victory. New York looks to continue their outstanding run in the postseason with the Tampa Bay Rays, who they will take on for four games starting on Friday. The bats for the Yankees have been going gangbusters, scoring well over 100 runs this season, and their run production has not let up since the All-Star break. The other thing driving their success is the fact that they are averaging nine runs a game on the road this season. Though they have had their struggles, the Yankees will be more than equipped to take advantage of the home run threat the Rays are sure to pose. Curtis Granderson and Aaron Judge have each had breakout starts to their season, as Granderson has really begun to hit for power and Judge is continuing his march to taking home Rookie of the Year. While Granderson is hitting .252/.331/.462 on the season, Judge is starting to show all the signs of a superstar at the plate as he is hitting .340/.416/.655 on his way to a near .400/.500/.900 slash line. Judge has 11 home runs and 24 RBIs in the last 20 games, most of which Granderson has missed due to a facial fracture suffered during an injury-shortened season for him. The Yankees will welcome Granderson back to the lineup while he is able to take batting practice without a mask on, which will be a nice change from the regular season, when he was hit in the face multiple times. New York will also be without the services of Chris Carter and Matt Holliday for the first three games of the series.

Both are nursing injuries and will have minor soft tissue injuries, the Yankees announced prior to the game. Carter will miss his first start in over 100 days, which ironically is the start of the ALDS, while Holliday will likely need a little more time to get back. Chris Archer will have to turn his attention to the lefty pitching of Sonny Gray. Gray has been phenomenal this
