IBackup For Windows [Updated-2022]

The main idea of this tool is to create a backup file of your system and restore it back to your system in case anything should go wrong with your PC or if you simply want to have a backup of your files to use in case of bad troubles. In order to create a backup, the tool must be executed when your PC is not working, in other words, you must boot the system using the Windows startup disk and not by booting the hard disk. The backup file must be created in a separate folder and it can be protected by a password. iBackup is also able to create a backup with several other operating systems including Mac OS. System requirements: One or more hard disks Bootable or running Windows XP Free space on your hard disk of at least 1 GB Also, the application should work on Windows 95, 98, NT, ME, 2000, 2003, and Vista. A simple tool to create a backup of your system Although it's a tool of great versatility, making a backup file of your system is not that hard and straightforward, in fact it's even easier than one might think. In case of a bad experience, you can simply restore all of the data onto your PC. The iBackup software can be used to create a complete backup, including the disk, the files in the folders and the data on the Internet. Once the backup has been made, you can run the program and save it on a separate floppy disk to be stored in a safe place. Restoring the backup file is very simple and takes only a few minutes. The backup will be created as a zip archive that you can safely download and unzip later on. When opening the program again, you will be provided with a log where you can configure options for the backup, such as time and date and file size. The application is extremely easy to use and can be used on any system with just a few clicks. There are more tools on the site you can use to create your backup file. It's obvious that it's a great time saving tool, there's no better time than the present to have a back up ready when it happens.
