1. Install Photoshop Elements To install Photoshop Elements, use the following commands (if you have Windows): Download and install Photoshop Elements 16.0.0.548 for Windows. Download and install Photoshop Elements 16.0.0.701 for Mac. The easiest way to install Photoshop Elements is to use the "Setup" button found at the top-left corner on the application's main screen.
3. Browse and edit your photos Photoshop Elements gives you a wide choice of editing tools that you can use to easily improve the quality of any photo, images or scanned documents. Here's a guide on how to use these tools: These are examples of some of the tools available:
Crop This tool helps you to make your image fit better on your computer screen, and to fill in empty parts of the picture. You can use the cropping tool to cut out a part of the photo and save it as an edited version of the image. To crop an image, move the Crop tool's Rectangular Marquee tool and click on your photo. This will allow you to select which part of the picture you want to crop out. If you want the Crop tool to stick to your selections, move the Crop tool's White Rectangular Marquee tool and click on your photo. To deselect an area, move the Crop tool's White Rectangular Marquee tool on the photo. You can crop the image on the left image, and save it on the right image.
Sharpening This tool is very helpful for improving the definition and contrast of your pictures. You can use the Sharpening tool to reduce the amount of digital noise and to eliminate some of the blurriness that sometimes occurs when you take pictures. To use the Sharpening tool, go to "Image > Adjustments > Sharpen." The Sharpening tool has two components: - The Amount button lets you adjust the strength of the tool. - The Radius button lets you adjust the size of the tool's area. To sharp your image more, increase both the Amount and Radius values. To sharpen the image less, lower the Amount value. After applying a high Amount value, you should make sure that the Gradient tool is clicked in the tool palette. After you've applied a681f4349e

[Surgical treatment of orthostatic hypotension]. To analyze the results of surgical treatment of orthostatic hypotension. This is a retrospective study of 21 patients treated from 1990 to 2010. The patients were operated on between 2010 and 2011 for orthostatic hypotension (OH). There were 7 men and 14 women (age range 32-79 years) with a mean age of 61 years. There were 11 presyncopal and 10 syncopal patients. The most common cause was hemorrhagic stroke (71%). In 13 of the 21 cases it was associated with aphasia, motor impairment or hemiparesis. OH was due to a C1-C2 arachnoid cyst in 12 cases, to a large brainstem cavernoma in 4 cases, to a pontine cavernoma in 1 case, to post-operative hemorrhage of moyamoya disease in 1 case and to an arachnoid cyst at the convexity of the brainstem in 1 case. All patients with C1-C2 arachnoid cyst were operated on with a one-stage approach using microsurgery with a curvilinear endoscope. The symptoms were improved in 15 patients, in 2 patients the symptoms were unchanged, in 3 patients the symptoms remained unchanged. In this study the most common cause of OH was an arachnoid cyst. The patients with an arachnoid cyst had a good outcome. Laparoscopic management of pheochromocytoma. Pheochromocytoma is a catecholamine-producing neuroendocrine tumour that occurs in about 3% of patients with primary hypertension. It is usually hormonally silent. The diagnosis is established by demonstrating the characteristic features of pheochromocytoma on adrenal imaging, and measuring the plasma or urine catecholamine concentrations. The diagnosis is confirmed if greater than 10% of the 24-h urinary catecholamines are norepinephrine or epinephrine. We describe a case of a 48-year-old man with a pheochromocytoma in whom diagnosis was established by the combination of clinical examination, measurement of plasma and urinary catecholamine concentrations and adrenal computed tomography (CT). A laparoscopic adrenalectomy was performed. In reviewing the literature we have found that this is the first case report of laparoscopic pheochromocytoma resection described in the English literature.

Novel mechanism of non-enveloped polyomavirus mediated suppression of apoptosis and enhanced tumorigenicity. Human polyomaviruses have been detected in approximately 90% of human cancer tissues and associated with tumor progression. It was suggested that the oncogenic properties of BKV are dependent on its latent status. However, the mechanism of BKV-mediated oncogenesis remains elusive. In this study, we examined the effect of BKV on suppression of apoptosis and tumorigenicity of the neoplastic MCF-7 cells. Stable clones of BKV-transfected MCF-7 cells (MCF-7-BKV) were selected using puromycin resistance gene. A cytopathic effect (CPE) of these cells was observed. The CPE did not occur in the control MCF-7 cells (MCF-7-C), which expressed a secreted luciferase reporter gene under the control of immediate-early promoter of BKV. MCF-7-BKV cells were found to be more resistant to irradiation-induced apoptosis than MCF-7-C cells. MCF-7-BKV cells grew faster than MCF-7-C cells in soft agar and the tumorigenicity of MCF-7-BKV cells was enhanced. Tumor cell-derived BKV was transmitted to MCF-7 cells via a cell-to-cell contact-dependent manner. It was demonstrated that the tumorigenicity of MCF-7 cells was inhibited by BKV via cell-to-cell contact-independent mechanism. BKV induces IL-10 production in MCF-7 cells by activating NF- $\kappa$ B. Moreover, conditioned media from BKV-transfected cells enhanced the migration of cancer cells. These results suggest a novel mechanism of BKV-mediated suppression of apoptosis and promotion of tumorigenicity in oncogenesis and tumor progression. Kindergarteners and their teachers embrace the positive changes of Black History Month in ways big and small. This month, we focus on the changes in schools, and how children are making their own mark in history in African-American communities. Last year, the theme of Black History Month was "Empowered by History and Culture: Break the Cycle of Violence." The Department of Education is just releasing the results from our latest video survey — and the
