Now a 23-year-old man has been reported to have died of MRSA-related septicaemia, and MRSA is now believed to be a critical threat in the United Kingdom. The first UK deaths from MRSA since the antibiotic resistance crisis was declared a global public health emergency in Europe in 2008 are believed to have been the result of unhygienic practices in the dental care industry. Health officials in the city of Wolverhampton have warned of a "much higher" risk of community-acquired MRSA (CAMRSA) being contracted from swimming pools in the area. This, the NHS health protection director for West Midlands,
