2006; Developer: EA Tiburon; Publisher: Electronic Arts; Genre: Action & Adventure.
The game was built on the Quake 3D engine, using elements from the "Doom" and "Half-Life" engines. The genre of the game is arcade action. This is the first game developed by EA where in multiplayer mode you can use not two players, but five (25 people) at once, and the connection is possible via Ethernet. Hence the name of the game - "Five". The only game mode is open, which allows players who know each other to participate, regardless of what content (weapons, equipment, etc.) they have already visited. Weapons for the game can be found in the open world, to communicate with friends you need to use Skype. Each player has his own "Star" button (character recovery within a certain cell in the game), certain weapons can be used an unlimited number of times a day, until they are "lost". The game is a continuation of the popular game "Saint's Row". To diversify the gameplay, in the game for a while for each player, you can choose any role - from a simple opponent to a team leader or a character who "specializes" in a certain area, such as master fighting, selling weapons, creating items, etc., etc. There are 12 characters in the game (3 male and 12 female), each with their own experience, skills, range, set of characteristics (Physical health, Health, Physical strength, Strength, Intelligence, Charisma, Foresight, Skill, Insight, etc.) and weapons (modular for all characters). Different characters have different styles of fighting, which determine the number of experience points per level (a respected character receives more experience points from each level than a malicious character), physical parameters (strength and endurance, dexterity and reactions, speed, longitude and intuition).

Among the characters there are loners (those who do not know how to team up with other characters to complete levels) and teams consisting of 2 players and 4 players (combination of combat and plot). Each character can gain up to 100 experience points in battles, the maximum of this parameter is 200 experience points. Killing enemies gives experience, gaining/removing abilities from enemies gives points (Kill EXP
