If I play on character three or four and someone asks "who are you?" or "help me", I have to tell them to ask one of the other five characters. With reverse fusion, I can tell them as a visual cue, "Whoa! Hold on a second, I have to get something from one of my other characters", and I can go talk to them when I'm ready. Which means I can play on five characters on one Discord channel, and I can be talking to them all, even though they're all on five different devices. A character in Dungeons & Dragons, or Dungeon & Dragons, refers to one of the four party members in the game. It is the hero of the story, the brave crusader, the rogue of honor and duty, or the wizard of wits and tactics who are out to save the realm. Many of today's games are more a dungeon run, a monster hunt, or a quest game. However, the quintessential Dungeons & Dragons game is one where players and Game Masters, the game masters, work together to confront the challenges before them. Dungeon Masters know this, and so it has become their habit to have the Dungeon Master make certain choices based on the Player's choices and play style. The Dungeon Master will always make choices that offer a unique experience to the Player. Likewise, Players adapt their characters to the Dungeon Master's choices and the encounters laid before them. Dungeon Masters can provide the Players with epic battles as well as set them up for victories, and they can reward their players with what many call 'the ultimate victory' - complete victory. But to do that, you must understand how to make choices, how to allow the players to make choices, and you must use those choices to keep the party together. This eBook presents a book of NPCs for use in the fifth edition of Dungeons & Dragons (D&D). Dungeon Masters and Players can use these NPCs to give their games more depth and excitement by letting them use the NPC choices that are appropriate to the adventure. A few of the NPCs are generic, which means that they can be used in any Dungeons & Dragons game at any level. The other NPCs are intended to be specific to the Dungeons & Dragons 5th edition ruleset. They have been written so that they can be used in a variety of games and experiences, but specific to the ruleset to which they are designed.
