7 A: I have also faced the same issue.. I managed to got the way around with this.. I used this method and it worked for me:
Open your Registry editor: Click on Regedit Navigate to HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Software\Microsoft\Windows NT\CurrentVersion\Winlogon\Shell (Note: There are two Shell value under HKEY_CURRENT_USER for 32bit and 64bit) Edit the Shell value. Then add the command \\{yourmachine}\c\ProgramData\Xforce\Conf

ig. Restart the machine. Degeneration of the ageing cochlea, in particular the stria vascularis and the hair cells, results in a loss of hearing, which may be perceived as loss of clarity and intensity of sound. Loss of hearing may also be responsible for loss of clarity and lack of depth in aural signals. Hearing loss may be caused by a reduction of the capacity of the auditory system to detect and interpret environmental sounds, auditory messages and other communicative cues. Many causes of hearing loss may be associated with damage to the inner ear, the cochlea, the cochlear nerve or the auditory nerves. Some of these causes are genetic. However, some more prevalent conditions can result in progressively increasing damage to the auditory apparatus including the cochlea and the auditory nerves, and can lead to diseases of the inner ear, such as tinnitus, sensorineural hearing loss, otosclerosis, and Meniere's disease. Accordingly, there is a need for compositions and methods that treat, diagnose, prevent or delay degeneration of the inner ear. Aquaporin-2 is more important than AQP1 in antidiuresis induced by prostaglandin E2 in the cortical collecting duct. The mechanisms by which a water permeable channel, aquaporin-2 (AQP2), conducts water from the initial segment of the nephron to the medullary collecting duct are not fully understood. The role of AQP2 in antidiuresis caused by a water permeable channel in the outer medullary collecting duct (OMCD) has been proposed. We have shown previously that a prostaglandin E2 (PGE2) receptor EP(4) in the OMCD is involved in the antidiuresis
