There are a number of services for associating a user with an item on the Internet, such as Amazon""s associate program and Favebook.

The presence of such programs shows that consumer products and services are beginning to integrate more effectively on the Internet.

Users are already familiar with the buying process in such stores, and so a way to further enhance the buying experience is to enhance the knowledge of users. The invention relates to a way of providing a user with more information about a found item. When the URI is sent to the web site, the web site transmits a title of the found item. The title is displayed to the user when the web site is invoked. The web site may store information regarding the found item and/or items in a database and transmit the information to the URI. The user may also be informed regarding the quality of the item. In one embodiment of the invention, the title of the item is a name for the item. For example, the title may be `xe2x80x9cAmazon.comxe2x80x9d`. In another embodiment, the title of the item is the URL associated with the found item. For example, a title may be `xe2x80x9cthemoviefavorites.com/amazon/xe2x80x9d`. In another embodiment of the invention, when the user 3e33713323
