Can't wait until 'The Walking Dead' Season 9? 'The Walking Dead' fans should start changing up their habits because AMC has already announced the return of the show for a ninth season. In February, AMC announced the development of the ninth season of the show and the two-part premiere, that will air from mid-October. The show's Season 8 concluded with a shocking episode that will bring Rick Grimes (Andrew Lincoln) to the endgame. The moment has been teased in the season finale, promising more blood and guts for the ongoing adventure of Rick and his group. Although Rick is said to be near the end of the road, 'The Walking Dead' fans shouldn't start changing up their habits because AMC has already announced the return of the show for a ninth season. Here's what AMC has to say: "We have an incredible lineup of hugely popular dramas in development at the network, including 'The Walking Dead' and 'Talking Dead', the No. 1 and No. 2 shows among all networks in 2018, respectively. And we are confident that with these shows and the talent behind them, AMC will continue to be the cable home of epic, high-impact storytelling for years to come." The cast and crew of 'The Walking Dead' has already begun filming the ninth season, so we should get to see an extended version of the season 8 finale in August. Since the show began, it has kept the audience in awe with its gripping tale. The dead may have returned, but the world itself is still not as clean-slate as it used to be. Like the popularity and reputation, 'The Walking Dead' fans will have to wait until the next season to know whether the zombie apocalypse is all over.Q: How to remove ":" from google App Engine appname? 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to the production of styrene oxide and, more particularly, to a method for producing styrene oxide in relatively high yield from acetone in the presence of a carboxylic acid. 2. Description of the Prior Art It is known that styrene oxide is produced by oxidizing styrene in the presence of an acid catalyst. For example, U.S. Pat. No. 3,201,436 describes such a process wherein a fixed bed of solid catalyst is employed at a temperature of 300.degree.-400.degree. C. The product styrene oxide is separated from the mixture of reactants and unreacted styrene by distillation. U.S. Pat. No. 3,839,429 describes a method for producing styrene oxide by oxidizing styrene in the presence of a carboxylic acid catalyst such as phosphoric acid or nitric acid. The process employs a mixture of styrene, oxygen and a carboxylic acid. In a first stage, styrene and oxygen are mixed and the reaction mixture is fed to a heat exchanger where the mixture is heated to a temperature of 200.degree.-350.degree. C. In a second stage, the reaction mixture is fed to a cooler where the mixture is cooled to a temperature of 100.degree.-200.degree. C. The temperature of the mixture in the second stage is held at about 140.degree. C. until sufficient styrene oxide has formed to give an end concentration of styrene oxide in the product mixture greater than the concentration of styrene in the mixture.cdot q_{m}-2B_{mn}\cdot q_{m}-B_{mn}\cdot q_{n}+ B_{mn}\cdot q_{m}-B_{mn}\cdot q_{n}\right] \right\} otag \\ &=&\frac{1}{8}\left[\left(8-4\right) +4-4\right] =\frac{1}{4}. \label{l8}\end{aligned}$$In a similar manner,
