Acunetix Web Vulnerability Scanner Professional crack Free Download - NETSPARKER® Pro v5.5 Free Version Q: OnSubmit() not running on a dynamic created form I created a function called addTest to add a form element using ajax. Each element is then being appended to the DOM via Jquery. I then have another function called addElementToForm which I believe is the function that is not firing as the button is not being clicked. The method is called when a button is clicked. I am unsure what I am doing wrong. Any help would be appreciated function addTest(id) { $.ajax({ url: "test", type: "post", data: { id }, success: function(data) { $("#post-body").append(""); }, dataType: "json" }) $("#post-body").on("submit", function(e) { e.preventDefault(); alert("Button was clicked"); }); } Add Checkbox A: I am unsure what I am doing wrong. You're not. The problem is that addTest only returns a request, but you do nothing with it. Instead of this: $.ajax({ url: "test
