, Flash Memory Toolkit 2.01 (Full Version) 350At least 18 people have been killed and dozens more injured in clashes between protesters and police in downtown Cairo on Thursday. Those killed include women and children. In footage showing the violence in Cairo's Tahrir Square, crowds can be seen hurling firebombs and rocks at policemen who respond with tear gas and stun grenades. Egyptian state media blamed "thugs" on "tourists" and "foreign elements." The protests are the largest in several years in Egypt. Here is what we know so far about the clashes: At least 18 people have been killed in Egypt's capital as protests continue into their ninth day. The exact number of deaths and injured is unknown. At least three protesters have died on Wednesday, two of them in Cairo and the third in the coastal city of Alexandria. The government confirmed at least 12 people killed and an unspecified number of injuries in the city, but gave no details on Wednesday's clashes in the capital. The protests began over the country's hikes in fuel prices, but have now turned into a wide-scale outpouring of anger against the government. The protests have largely been peaceful, as residents have taken to the streets in large numbers. But all of that has changed on Thursday. At least 18 people have been killed and dozens more injured in clashes between protesters and police in downtown Cairo on Thursday. Those killed include women and children. The demonstrations have largely been peaceful, as residents have taken to the streets in large numbers. But all of that has changed on Thursday. On the sixth day of the protests, thousands of demonstrators turned violent. In footage showing the violence in Cairo's Tahrir Square, crowds can be seen hurling firebombs and rocks at policemen who respond with tear gas and stun grenades. Some protesters can be seen carrying and throwing pieces of cloth to make pyrotechnic devices. They can also be seen throwing stones at the police. This story has been updated to include information about how Egypt's government confirmed the deaths and injuries. Egyptian security forces have shut down internet access in Cairo and other cities to try and stop information from spreading about ongoing protests. The crackdown comes as the government tries to rein in crowds that have been demonstrating for the past six days. Thousands of protesters took to the streets on Tuesday and Wednesday in various
