So, the answer to your question: You don't need the GHD 350 Pro 1.0 Driver because you do not need any driver or software to use this product with your PC. You could use it without any driver as it has been pre-installed in the device. If you need any driver, you could download it in this link and install. 000, after an acute cardiovascular disease, coronary artery surgery, or after a cerebrovascular accident; e.g. stroke, transient ischemic attack, or cerebral infarction; 5) when there are no compelling indications for coronary artery bypass grafts; 6) when the native valves are deemed structurally or functionally unsuitable for surgical replacement; 7) if there is a known poor outcome with surgery on native valves in a high-risk patient, when surgery on the valves should be considered in carefully selected patients, or when alternative means of therapy are not available; 8) when associated clinical, angiographic, or echocardiographic evidence suggests a possible valvular or subvalvular lesion; or 9) when the patient has a highly selected panel of cardiac conditions. Attention to cardiovascular risk reduction among patients referred to AHEOP for bicuspid valvulopathy is indicated. However, this does not conflict with AHA/ACC recommendations for cardiovascular risk reduction as patients presenting for a bicuspid valve repair are low-risk and considered candidates for intervention \[@B19\]. While AHEOP is a specialty referral program, our program can also provide cost-effective screening and referral for patients who seek care outside of AHEOP. Any patient with bicuspid valve stenosis or regurgitation should be evaluated by a cardiologist familiar with the bicuspid valve disease. Conclusions ===== Bicuspid valve disease is associated with an increased risk of cardiovascular and cerebrovascular events. Specific diagnosis of bicuspid valvulopathy is important for patients considering revascularization procedures or TAVR. Patients with bicuspid valve disease and coronary, cerebrovascular and peripheral vascular disease should be evaluated by a cardiovascular specialist familiar with this entity. Further study is required to assess the full impact of this
