I have written some kind of a static code analyzer that does static code analysis over an application and generates some reports. In order to find places which can be potentially violated, I hook into `__thiscall ImplementationMethodCallHandler::RunExpression` has cpp file (i.e., function that is generated over the code) I can open, but I can't find any information on how to get at declaration of the wrapped function (i.e., how to get at the declaration code of `GeneratedClass::GenerateFunction` that should be called). So is there any mechanism that enables such interception or any other way to find source code of the calls made?
Edit: I have started to test some stuff and some have suggested that it's actually possible to hook into `ImplementationMethodCallHandler::GetMethod`, but I am getting a call to
