Table of Contents: Layers: Layers are the building blocks of Photoshop. They are made up of image areas and layers. An image area is what is seen when you look at a file, whereas a layer is not visible and can be very much like an invisible region within your image. These areas can be given names and be edited, and many people forget the layer system altogether. The program has many layers. These layers are created as a matter of course in a project, in order to separate out image areas, change color or density, or make objects transparent or even invisible. Overlay: The overlay is the way you make parts of an image transparent or show things on top of an image. For example, you can make something transparent by assigning it a white or clear overlay, or you can make a transparent water drop shape appear in the middle of an image. In the Photoshop user guide it says, "Simply select the image you want to overlay, and then specify which type of overlay you want to use. You can choose from a menu of basic shapes and textures. If you want to use different objects, you can create your own. Do not worry if your objects look strange at first. They are easy to create and change." Document size: The document size refers to the size of the paper printout. You can change the size of the printout using the instructions in the Photoshop manual. Adjusting Image Size: There are several ways to adjust the size of the image in Photoshop. They are: Align Refine Edge Selection Window Image Size: Photoshop has a toolbar with several icons. One of them is the Image Size icon, which allows you to resize the photo to a different size. Opacity: The opacity setting determines the transparency of your image. The opacity of a Photoshop layer is controlled with the Opacity slider. This is found on the Layers panel of the main menu. This setting will allow you to make one layer of the image more transparent than another layer. You can even go so far as to make a single layer completely transparent, by placing a rectangular selection on the layer and clicking on the Transparency drop-down menu, until you get to 100 percent. You can make a layer visible or invisible by adjusting its opacity. The opacity of a Photoshop layer is adjusted by the opacity slider

The impact of individual freedom on the conduct of economic policy in Canada. Despite Canadians' proclaimed admiration for their heritage, the United States is the model for nearly all aspects of social, political, and economic life in Canada. The authors examine the origins of this approach to economic policymaking and the subsequent loss of autonomy suffered by Canadian social and economic actors. They identify the consequences of the "concordat" between the Canadian federal government and Canadian business organizations and the consequent loss of influence and autonomy suffered by the federal government in Ottawa. Comparing the two principal provinces of Canada, they assert that the loss of individual autonomy and the loss of policy support have detrimental consequences for economic welfare. The present invention relates to an antenna, and more particularly, to a tape antenna that employs an antenna sheet wound on a tape bobbin. Tape antennas generally include an antenna sheet wound on a tape bobbin. When one end of the antenna bobbin is sandwiched between the earth or ground and a magnetic core, the earth or ground and magnetic core create a gap that causes a cutout section to be formed in the tape bobbin. The cutout section in the tape bobbin is filled with a conductive material. The cutout section works as an open section. The antenna sheet is inserted into the cutout section. Various tape antennas are known in the prior art. For example, tape antennas are disclosed in Korean Utility Model Registration Nos. 20-0203779 and 20-0203812, and in Korean Patent Registration No. 20-0344565. However, due to recent trends toward small and light electronic devices, such as mobile phones, thin and small antennas are increasingly needed. However, the conventional tape antennas that have only open sections cannot fit in such small electronic devices. Accordingly, the aim of the present invention is to provide a tape antenna that can be applied to various electronic devices in which high performance is needed. The tape antenna according to the present invention includes an antenna bobbin, an antenna sheet, a ground terminal, and a conductive bobbin section. The antenna bobbin is formed by winding an antenna sheet on a tape bobbin. The antenna sheet is made of a conductive material. The tape bobbin includes a circular front body portion having a tape folding section at the front end and a circular rear body portion having a front end folded to the rear of the circular front body portion. The front body portion is connected to the rear body portion at the tape folding section. In addition

Q: Wrong data entry in array I am trying to use the array I have in the code below. It seems that I am getting wrong data at times. Is that normal? Thank you very much for any assistance. function exportGeoJSON(types, zoom){ var layer = L.geoJson(types, {style: style}); if (zoom) { layer.setZoom(zoom) } if (options.showLabels) { layer.addData({id: [], name: []}); } if (options.showLabels) { layers.addLayer(layer); var listener = L.mapbox.accessToken ? L.mapbox.accessToken.on('change', function () { if (!options.showLabels) { layers.removeLayer(layer); } }) : L.mapbox.accessToken ? undefined : L.mapbox.accessToken ? undefined; layer.addAccessToken(listener); } layers.addLayer(layer); function style () { return { weight: 2, opacity: 1, color: 'black', fillOpacity: 0.5,
