Oxitec Panama City Must See The Cure, It literally changed my life, There was a time. I met this guy. All he wanted to do was make a difference. 'How can I help you?' I asked. 'I want to do the most good I can with my life,' he told me. To this day. I know he was right. I knew he was full of good. I knew he was right because he had it all figured out. Better. Simple. Anyone can do this. He'd been saving up all his money for years, At the time I thought it was to pay a private. But all he had was the time. He'd put his parents'. His grandmother's. Everything. He waited. Coffee. Alcohol. Tattoos. Grad School. Everything. And he didn't do anything. The first time I met him was. He was handing out flyers for a local event. Hey, he said to me. I'm here to change things. I would change my life. I would change my world. I would. Do something. Don't just exist, he said. Do something that makes a difference. Do something that makes the world a better place. Simple. Everyone can do this. So I bought a bunch of pamphlets from him. And he was right. Over. Time. It was the best mistake I'd ever made. I wasn't just a person who sits. Who lives. Who exists. Who just gives life to the world. I made myself an activist. I met a girl. And
