LiveUSB is a USB drive which can be used to boot your system from an ISO file. It uses the same method that Live CD or Live USB drives use. You just need to download the same ISO file as the file that will be installed on your USB device. You can then use that USB device as if it was a real operating system. This also lets you to install operating system on USB and use it as a handy device that you can use on travel and having the ability to install from one system to other. This type of drive is very different because it installs the ISO file and you don't see the normal bootable device. This means that when the USB is plugged in you have the option to choose which operating system you want to load. This is very useful in many situations, you can quickly install an Operating System on a computer to use it without having to boot to the hard drive or use an external hard drive. This also allows to install Windows 8.1, Windows 7, Windows 10, Mac or Linux. This is because there are many different OS's available and this does not mean that you will not find your desired OS available. However there are some flaws that you can expect. One of the most annoying is that when you plug in the USB and boot from the device it will not boot to the USB device itself and instead it will boot to the Hard Drive of the computer that you have installed. If you do not have a hard drive connected to your computer it will boot the ISO and then will auto reboot and give you a chance to choose the ISO location. There are other options you can use to install, but they are not necessary to boot the device. This could be a good option for you if you are looking to install a different operating system that you like and do not want to install it on your computer hard drive. It is really fast when installing and does not take a long time to use. There are multiple options to use to boot the system. You can choose USB as the default to boot the computer. You can also choose the ISO or chose where it will be installed. You can choose how many times to boot the USB. There are other options you can use as well. You can choose to boot USB only if your computer is sleeping, or you can have it boot if it is turned on. If you are installing Windows you can choose to have it install the new operating system on the USB device itself. You have the ability to choose if the USB device boots to 3a67dfeec

As this is the portable version of the program, it is important to mention that it doesn't leave any traces in the Windows Registry. You can copy it on any USB flash drive or other devices, and take it with you whenever you need to use a countdown timer for shutting down your computer on the breeze, without having to go through installation steps. It sports a clean and simplistic layout that allows you to set up the dedicated parameters with minimum effort. The program gives you the possibility to specify the time (in hours and seconds) and select the desired mode (e.g. shutdown, reboot, logoff). As soon as you configure the aforementioned parameters, Portable Simple Shutdown Timer automatically counts down the time until it shuts down your PC. Additionally, you are allowed to stop the process with a single click. The lack of configurable settings can be good news only for beginners, as they can learn to master the entire process with minimum effort. However, more experienced users may find it pretty inconvenient to work with a tool that doesn't offer support for advanced functions. You cannot schedule an event for making the utility close or run a certain program, turn off the computer at a user-defined time, and run the tool at Windows startup. During our testing we have noticed that Portable Simple Shutdown Timer carries out a task very quickly, and no errors showed up throughout the entire process. It doesn't eat up a lot of CPU and memory, so the overall performance of the computer is not affected. All in all,
