What's new in Project X:

3: The Resurrection Project X3 was launched to continue the CRP research and prove the existence of another highly plausible life-giving force that appears in a dank swamp atmosphere. The assault was interrupted before it could be completed. Project Mutant, a clone group racing to dominate as a colossus in the Pokemon world under the name "G2" and making its share of roadblocks. Stories of a prophecy of the new world still are not over... As if that were not enough, the attacks of Project Mutant became so costly that G2 suffered financial harm. Though, not so bad, as it then was critical in losing to G2 in full-scale attacks. Read in-depth info below... Hyperion A blue-white figure that came from a mysterious place, after appearing to be enveloped in energy that radiated with several shades of blue, Hyperion was swept up in a weakened form. She lives in a colored bar area like a laundromat. This woman who would have easily been ridiculed as a space alien turned out to be an aura able to transform into a living being, no bigger than a small girl's at that. In the end, Hyperion found that this transformation ability came at the cost of energy, but it was not a fatal situation. By using "Vihtomar" Nijine's life-energy as her light source, she managed to obtain the power that had been lost. This feeling of vitality, that allowed Hyperion to gain a certain amount of control, was bestowed on her by this drawing strength from the atmosphere... "Vihtomar" Nijine The girl that Nijine gave everything to is still the most essential part that allowed Hyperion to defeat the enemy. "Vicogege" is an acronym that stands for Visual Attractive Gender-conforming (Female, the preference of visual expression) and Education-giving (Computer, the preference of study). "Clone"—"Beings who have the same genetic make-up, but is not infected by the virus" (Wikipedia) Clones as "Beings who have the same genetic make-up". I previously thought that this was just a convenient way to describe the "Yamadenagi" or a Defense type weapons. However, not only are clones that are created but they are made into weapons. Just like human
