It has some things that remind me of my own resume, but most of it is new to me. So after I've thought about it, I can probably make some comments as to where I think he fits. He spent some time in TV/film/location production, but he ended up working in advertising. Probably some things he learned that would be useful in the book business. The only thing that strikes me as odd is that he spends a lot of time listing all of his production credits, but only his latest book is linked to his resume. I also wonder about his gaming credits. One thing I noticed is that he doesn't list his management experience or how he connects with authors. I would have expected that to be up front, especially as there is that poster of him at the end. I think this is a good resume if he were to spend a little more time tailoring it. Interesting mix of experience there. Took a few pages to get to my resume. But, then again, it seems like it needs a little editing. Interesting that he spent a long time in the industry, and yet, his resume is written in a more traditional style, rather than the conversational prose that comes naturally to me. I don't want to go too in-depth in the timing, since he's still active and we don't know what he's been up to lately. But I'd been thinking about it, and it appears that he's been spending a lot of time on self-publicity lately. Maybe 6d1f23a050
