Key points: Joyce Chambers says her husband tried to put pressure on her to end the relationship Joyce Chambers says her husband tried to put pressure on her to end the relationship The Department of Home Affairs referred her to the Local Government, Housing and Community Services The Department of Home Affairs referred her to the Local Government, Housing and Community Services She is asking for privacy for her child The affair took place after the couple's separation in 2001, around the same time Mr Chambers, a Liberal Party senator, was being asked to quit his job because of his part in a cover-up of allegations against Victorian Labor MP Eddie Obeid. Attorney-General George Brandis had led an independent investigation into the department that found it had "undermined the interests of the public" and seen employees engaged in "serious misconduct". The revelation forced Mr Chambers to reveal that his wife had also been employed by the department and had been reassigned to the same local government office that employed her husband. Justice Minister Michael Keenan has confirmed he alerted Mr Brandis to the affair. "I did so because of the major adverse impact on the department the exposure of the facts had on the reputation of the Minister," he said. "It was critical of the conduct of the minister's office, and of the processes, systems and procedures within that office." Joyce Chambers says she was given a choice: guit the affair or guit her job. (ABC News: Nick Haggarty) The revelations sparked a stoush between the family's two lawyers as they argued over whether the ministers or the private lawyers were to blame. Mr Brandis, who announced on Wednesday he would not be recusing himself in any upcoming legal challenges against his decision, had previously told the Senate he had been "assured" by the Department of Home Affairs that Mr Chambers was not employed in the department at the time of the affair. On Wednesday,

Fiscal Impact Statement A FACULTY AND STAFF PERFORMING ASTRONOMY STATION OPERATIONS UNDER THE PURSUIT OF A SUBSISTENCE PLAN AT OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY There have been some administrative and faculty changes in this program since the new Dean took office. Consequently, the faculty component of this impact statement will reflect events as they have transpired rather than the "planned" requirements. The officer's title "Revised Outline Performance Plan" was revised to "Senior Biostatistician." The previous title was "Professor, Director, Statistical Sciences" and the previous title was "Professor, Director, Statistical Sciences." Because this is a continuation of the previous plans, the performance objectives for the Vice President, Provost, and Senior Biostatistician remain the same for the duration of this plan. The title "Distance Education/Remote Research Teacher" was replaced by the title "Outreach," which encompasses the same plans. As previously described in the revised outline performance plan, the faculty 6d1f23a050
