A police officer in Oregon appears to have taken a picture of himself with a black crook handcuffed on his back, leaving his colleague to flip and go viral on social media. Portland police said the photo was a "training exercise" but initially apologised to the officer, who they said had been "upset" by the incident. The image was taken by Oregon State Police Trooper Amanda Geary, whose Facebook account shows her as a "Bend Police Officer", but the post has been shared more than 6,000 times and liked by more than 11,000 users. Writing on Facebook, Ms Geary said: "Yes, I took the photo on my cellphone and I have deleted it. I am sorry for my actions. "The training I was conducting was in a primarily African-American neighborhood. I had no intention of offending anyone with the photo and I wouldn't do that again." The story has been shared widely online, with some media reporting that Ms Geary was suspended or sacked over the incident. Police have since released a statement saying the "officer who was pictured was a subject of an internal investigation and not disciplined in any way". Some users have called for Ms Geary to be fired. Hafsa Shamsi, a community engagement specialist at the Muslim
